CENTRE FOR GOVERNANCE & PUBLIC MANAGEMENT (CGPM)

The Centre for Governance and Public Management (CGPM) is a part of the Suleman Dawood School of Business (SDSB) at the Lahore University of Management Sciences (LUMS). Its mandate is to impart undergraduate and postgraduate education in the area of Public Management/Policy, to conduct trainings, and carry out related high quality research and construct dialogue around pertinent public policy issues in the country. CGPM has a research-active faculty, which regularly publishes in national and international journals and books. It's academic and research focus includes legal and institutional reform in the public sector, public sector management (particularly in education, health, agriculture and energy), rural social structures, and gender and policy. Under the the Assessment and Strengthening Program, the center conducted over 150 training programs for senior and mid-career public and non-profit sector managers and successfully trained more than 3000 participants in a wide spectrum of courses, such as, Financial Management, Monitoring & Evaluation, etc. Its large and diverse portfolio places the centre in a unique position as a premier training provider in Pakistan.

SULEMAN DAWOOD SCHOOL OF BUSINESS (SDSB)

The Suleman Dawood School of Business, established in 1986, was the first school instituted at LUMS. SDSB was founded with the vision of becoming a leading management school in the region, with a truly global perspective, recognized for research and teaching excellence. SDSB is ranked as the best business school in Pakistan, as per the rankings issued in 2013 by the Higher Education Commission, and is the only management school from Pakistan to hold accreditation from the South Asian Quality Assurance System (SAQS) of the Association of Management Development Institutions in South Asia (AMDISA). The school has also been awarded full-member status of the Association of Asia-Pacific Business Schools, and is a member of the European Foundation for Management Development as well.

CONFERENCE SCOPE AND CONTEXT

Availability, and accessibility of organizational and public space represents one of the central concerns of these turbulent times. An ideal organization or public space should be open and accessible to individuals irrespective of their background or identity. In practice, public space almost always entails limitations and exclusions based on law, public policy and local norms. However, in practice, organizational and social spaces are often neither inclusive nor neutral. Instead, while some modes of expression, identities and bodies are treated as normal – even ideal – others deemed deviant are either denied access or marked for surveillance and subsequent marginalization and invisibility.

Management plays a central role in maintaining the system of permissions and prohibitions that sustain the particular socially constructed nature of space in an organization or polity. For example, material and social management of space within organizations leads to unequal distribution of status and power; factors that in turn lead to suboptimal individual and organizational performance. Similarly, as the Black Lives Matter movement highlights, government officials can be inadvertently responsible for extra surveillance and selective implementation of the law on different minorities hindering their presence in the public space.

On the other hand, inclusive leadership and management of organizations and public spaces can play a critical role in creating more inclusive, equitable and accessible societies. All this makes management of space as an important site of governance and management. This conference brings together academics and practitioners to engage with these important debates that are of critical significance for the future of Pakistan.
